Halverson of the Norwegian steamship Terje Viken, which arrived here today from Newcastle, reports having seen March 7, southeast of Bermuda, an

PLANS MADE BY THE CITY
Chimmhuita is to be properly drained in times of heavy rains, if the contemplated plans of the city administration are carried out.

The city engineers office is now working out a system of storm drains to extend on Seventh street from the alley west of Kansas street to Park street, with an outlet to the river down the alley between Stanton and Kansas streets, and another outlet to the river at the east end. A sewer will also be extended north on Stanton street to catch the water from the territory west of Stanton street.

This system, if installed, will, it is believed, offectively take care of all flood waters in the territory from the business section to Seventh street.

Far out in East El Paso, grading work is under war. Copia is now being graded from Blies to Montana streets, and Grama is to be graded from Hueco to Montana. The grading work on Soulevard is well advanced. It is pinned soon to start the work of paving South Kansas street.

On the ranch I had three wells. The first was a shallow one. It did not take much sinking, but its water was-bad! The less said of it the better.

The second one was deeper and took much more time and patience going down. In two weeks we went four inches, but then we pierced the rock and got good water. The third one was deeper still and in its making we used more time, more labor, more machinery. Weeks passed with the engine house and pump, then we got still better and more abundant

Near the surface of life we get something, but often it is like the shallow water. If we go desper it is harder work; toil, skill, and persistency all are necessary, but, but, the deeper water is the better.
